

Bhote Koshi is the main branch of the Sun Koshii and it is near the Tibetan border at Kodari. The river is followed by the Arniko Highway from Kathmandu to Lhasa beautiful mountain river, only a few hours from Kathmandu, offering and navigating Nepal's most challenging river rafting or kayaking trips at all classes of difficulty provide excitement, thrill and wilderness. Recommended for immediate and advanced rafter and kayaker.

Snow Giants loom over as the clean, fresh water roars and dodges its way through narrow canyons and the remnants of a huge, Giants' boulder-tossing contest! Shooting down glistening shoots into bubbling, frothing pools, the raft twists, turns and plunges to the exhilarated shrieks of the crew. The Bhote Koshi is one of the most technical rivers in Nepal, providing continuous, challenging rapids from start to finish.
